CHINESE CLOTHIERS.

They Are Teaching an Unwelcome Lesson to Tallors in San Francisc The clothing manufacturers of this city are leasing the lesson which the Chinese taught the fruit canners long

A gentleman whose name is well known in society circles, and whose hatred of the Chinese is also well known, called upon a Market street tailor one Saturday night for a suit which he had ordered early in the

"It is not done yet," said the tailor. "But you said it would be finished

"Yes, I did, and the tallor who is sewing the suit promised to have it here, but he has not kept his word. I'll send a boy for it now.'

"No, I'll go for it myself. Give me the man's address." "My dear sir, I would not trouble you for all the world. I'll send the "I tell you I will go for it myself you have had time enough to send your boy. Give me the address." He was given the address of a Chine tailor on Clay street. "Do you mean to say"-and the face of the society man flush red with wrath "that my clothes are handled by filthy Chinese ?"

"My dear sir, Chinese make half the clothes that are made in the city." "But I see women at work in the shops. Can't you find enough of them to do your work?" "Oh, most of the women are employed for show. They attract cus-tomers, but they do little work. Go around to one of these places late at night, and if you don't find a Chinaman loading a wagon with cloth ready cut for the sewers I am not in the busi-

"Then," said the gentleman, "you are simply a commission man. I pay you so much to have my clothes made by Chinese, I think I will save the commission hereafter,"

There was more truth then poetry in the statement which the clothier made to his customer. The Chinese clothier is flourishing apace. Chinese tailors who make garments for American cus tomers exclusively have opened three shops on Clay street, two on Commer cial, one on Pacific, three on Dupont and five on Stockton, and a contract was given recently for the erection of a large factory in which a Chinaman is to employ Chinese to manufacture clothing. A few years ago he was making clothes for a white tailor for less than they could be made by a white man or woman. In a few months he will be selling clothes for less than a white man can sell them.-San Franeiseo Call.

As a matter of fact, when he died at last a will was in force identically the same as the first one I had drawn up for him thirty years before. If he had saved the money he spent with me, and had put money he spent with me, and had put it out at compound interest, he would have had a very snug sum-well on toward four figures-to add to his es-

Two gentlemen from Guunden ascended the Transstein successfully, though with great difficulty. When they left Gmunden, at 8:80 in the morning, the thermometer was 20 degs, below freezing point. When they reached the summit at 1 o'clock it was 40 degs. below freezing. One of the climbers says that the view from the top was the most extensive one he has yet seen, al-though he has ascended the Traumstein fifty-one times. The tourists could not remain long at the summit, as the north wind was very sharp. The descent took only an hour and a quarter. The Tram-stein peak is 0,540 feet high.—Vienna Cor. London News.
